

Published on National Council of Nonprofits (<https://www.councilofnonprofits.org>)

Original URL: <https://www.councilofnonprofits.org/trends-and-policy-issues/state-policy-tax-law/investing-impact-indirect-costs-are-essential-success>

Investing for Impact: Indirect Costs are Essential for Success

Investing for Impact

Indirect Costs Are Essential for Success

Fourth in a series of Streamlining Reports on solutions to improve government-nonprofit contracting issues

NATIONAL COUNCIL OF NONPROFITS

National voice. State focus. Local impact.

www.councilofnonprofits.org

Investing for Impact

Click on image above for full report.

Investing for Impact: Indirect Costs are Essential for Success addresses how governments that hire charitable nonprofits to deliver services and then reimburse them for less than reasonable indirect costs undermine the ability of nonprofits to deliver high quality services. It reviews research documenting that such an approach erodes communities and contracting relationship while ensuring higher-performing partners and cost savings for taxpayers.

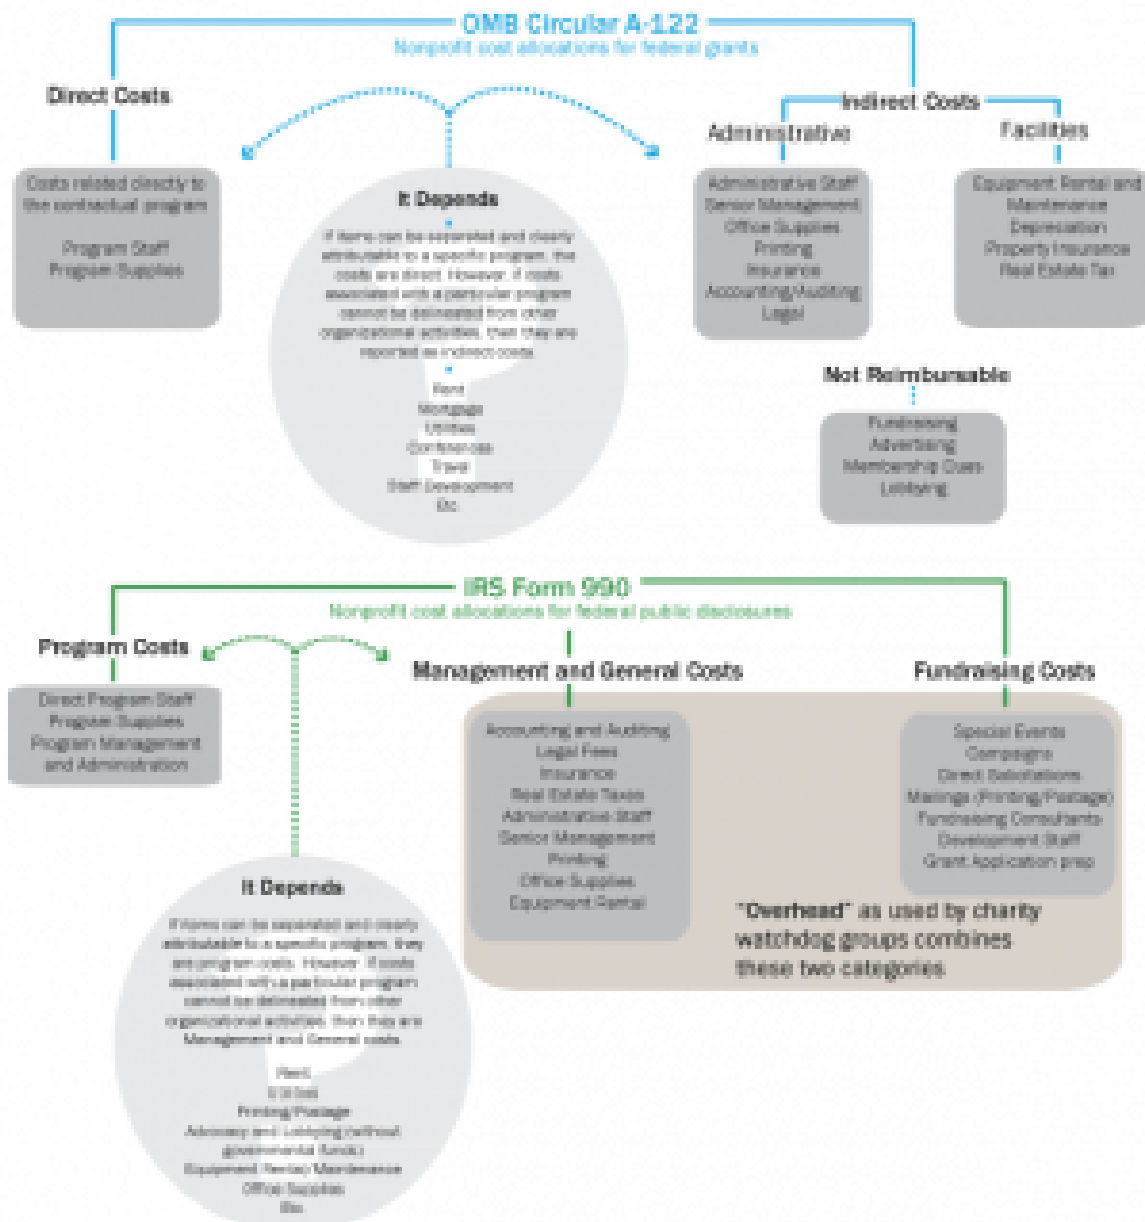

Studies reveal that the usual range of overhead rates for for-profit companies and nonprofit organizations alike is approximately 25% to 35%.

Yet, governments have historically treated nonprofit organizations differently, imposing arbitrary restrictions on reimbursement rates that undercut the ability of their partners to succeed on behalf of taxpayers. Unrealistic limits on reimbursement of a nonprofit's legitimate costs undermine its efficiency, effectiveness, and ability to perform vital services on behalf of the governments.

- Full Report

What kind of cost is it?

It's Complicated*

* Details in this graphic are provided for illustrative purposes only. Allocation of actual costs will vary.

More About Investing for Impact

- Common Problems in Government-Nonprofit Grantmaking, National Council of Nonprofits

- Toward Common Sense Contracting: What Taxpayers Deserve, National Council of Nonprofits, May 2014.